

appserv-x64-9.3.0 Error vcruntime140d.dll

Category: Machine Learning

written by Mbsm.tn | 3 January 2025

When you encounter an error message indicating that the vcruntime140d.dll file is missing or not found while running an application like appserv-x64-9.3.0, it usually means that the application depends on the Visual C++ Redistributable library that contains this file. In the case of the error mentioning vcruntime140d.dll, it indicates that the application is looking for a development-specific version of the library (the d in the filename denotes the debug/development version).

T568A and T568B Standards

Category: Microservices

written by Mbsm.tn | 3 January 2025

The T568A and T568B standards define the arrangement of wires inside RJ-45 network cables, where each standard specifies a different color order, affecting how cables are connected to devices. The choice between them depends on compatibility with existing infrastructure or personal preference.
